

Adding a Farm Layer to a Mobile Device for Use in Google Earth

Download your farm .KML/.KMZ file from the Wilmar Grower Web to your smartphone or Tablet.

Log into the Wilmar Grower Web.

Go to: MAPS – DATA.

By clicking the I Agree button and receiving access to the GIS data files, you will be deemed to have accepted the above terms.

Agree to Wilmar's terms and conditions.

Click on the .zip file to download.

Google Earth

The .kmz file will open Google Earth, showing the cane block boundaries. Click on the indicated icon to zoom to your location in Google Earth.

You are the blue dot and the transparent area around the blue dot is the location error. Meaning that you are somewhere within that transparent blue area.

Tap inside a block boundary and information about that cane block appears.

Click on the Hamburger icon (three horizontal lines) to open a Properties menu.

Properties is where changes can be made to projects, and active projects can be changed.

In Projects different data (called Projects) can be made visible or invisible.

An open eye icon says that a particular KML dataset is visible, while three vertical dots says that the data is not visible in Google Earth.

Click on the three dots and a menu opens to make data visible, hidden, or to remove the data from Google Earth all together. This does not remove the data from your device, rather it is no longer available in Google Earth.
